As part of its new Promoting Health Equity: Mental Health of Black Canadians Fund, the Public Health Agency of Canada is seeking proposals for community-based projects that support culturally focused knowledge, capacity, and programs that promote mental health and address its determinants for Black Canadians.

The Promoting Health Equity: Mental Health of Black Canadians Fund consists of two streams (applicants may apply to only one funding stream):

- Implementation Stream: Provides funding to recipients for community-led projects that implement and evaluate culturally focused programs that promote mental health and address its determinants for Black Canadians.
- Incubator Stream: Provides short-term funding to support community-based applicants that operate with limited organizational capacity and resources to first undertake steps to increase their capacity to design, develop, implement, and evaluate culturally focused programs that promote mental health and address its determinants for Black Canadians. Incubator Stream funding recipients who demonstrate success in increasing their capacity and readiness will be invited to apply for additional funding to implement the project idea developed through this initial incubation process.

The deadline to submit an application to either funding stream is November 7, 2018.

For more information about this funding opportunity, please refer to the attached Call for Proposals. In early October, there will be four information sessions held via webinar to provide information on the program and funding opportunities and engage potential applicants on any questions about the application process, as follows:
